BUSTERBACK RANCH

Busterback Ranch in Idaho's scenic Sawtooth Valley suffers from schizophrenia. Its personality changes according to the season.

In summer it is a working cattle ranch that doubles as a dude ranch. In winter it is a first-class cross-country skiing resort with access to 4,500 acres of wilderness.

CROSS-COUNTRY SKIING TERRAIN AT BUSTERBACK RANCH IS NOTHING LESS THAN SPECTACULAR.

The scenery is nothing less than spectacular. Sawtooth Valley is nestled between the Sawtooth Mountains on the west and the White Cloud Mountains on the east. A multitude of lakes and forests lies in-between.

The ranch is 40 miles north of Sun Valley on Highway 75. It is a six-hour drive from Salt Lake City.

Facilities include a lodge for overnight guests complete with the comforts of home, as well as such luxuries as a wood-fired hot tub and sauna and a sun deck. There is a cross-country equipment rental shop, a day-lodge and 40 kilometers of regularly groomed trails. Guides are available for half-day and full-day expeditions. They give instruction as well.

Shepherd wagon have been placed sporadically along the trails. Skiers are welcome to climb inside to eat, rest or get warm.
